HAUNTING OF SMITHVILLE

By TaraJean McDonald

None of the locals will ever go out in the woods late at night near the old village of Smithville, NJ. When the moon is bright and the winds blow in from the ocean one can even imagine the colonial residents of Smithville shutting their doors and shutters to keep out the night air. But that is not all they wish to keep out. The legend of a dangerous creature named The Jersey Devil is known to lurk in the woods nearby searching for prey. Historic Smithville has been rebuilt to its original quaintness giving tourists the opportunity to become fully enveloped in the experience of a 16th Century village. The principal building is the original and restored Colonial Inn. There is a rumor that within this 30-room establishment a ghost has been seen passing through rooms 201 and 202. The apparition appears to be that of a middle-aged colonial woman who dresses in typical high neck, stiff bodice that buttons, long sleeves, and a full petticoat and cap.

Other buildings that line the dusty streets are two other inns, the Lantern Light and The Barn. Ghost hunters and mediums frequent the village hoping to connect with a restless spirit or ghost. Reports of paranormal activity involving two young girls who were burned in a bakery fire have been recorded during one such visit by local paranormal investigators Nina Circone and Paula Nebbagui, and medium Lisa Wolff.

The New Jersey Pine Barrens, with their carnivorous plants and creepy burned pine trees surround this ghostly town off the Garden State Parkway. So if you ever want to learn more of the history of the village of Smithville, NJ, take a ghostly tour one evening. But remember to bring your imagination and your flashlight because you might even get a glimpse of the terrifying New Jersey Devil.

SEEKERS CLUB PARANORMAL

Anthony - Founded SCP in 1996 . He has over 30 years experience in the Paranormal Research Field. Since he was a teenager he has been seeking into the darkness for answers . As a young child Anthony saw spirits in his family home. He started this team to not only find reasons behind his own experiences, but to also help others who are going through the same he'd experience as a young child.

To his credit he taught a class, Paranormal 101. During the fall of 2015 he worked as a Paranormal Adviser for an independent film named Ghost Team released 10/2015. Screen test for The Nightly Show with Larry Wilmore. Narrated Documentary called " Are you there " with SCP team . Wrote a short stories for "Tails from to other side " PET AND THE PARANORMAL book released 10/2016. He was also interviewed for an Italian news paper about Haunted New York.

Gerard - After a personal experience that occurred during a visit to the Peach Orchard located on the battle field in Gettysburg, Pa. Gerard joined SCP in the quest to find explanations as to what happened to him. Gerard was taking a video when he was violently pushed by an unseen force. So he joined along side his Brother Anthony and began his search for answers.

Jesse has been with SCP since the age of 13. He's been on many investigation with his father (Anthony) and Uncle (Gerard) . He has been having experiences with spirits since he was a young boy. He operates the video camera and works along side fellow teammates as Equipment Tech.

Hope has had experiences with Supernatural Events from the time she was four years old. After a life time of experiences, and watching other Paranormal investigators on television out there, she figured if they could do it so could she. Ten years and hundreds of hours of audio later, she Joins the SCP family in 2013.

Joey has had personal experiences that brought him to joining SCP in 2012. He works in our tech department and is vital in setting up all of the equipment for investigations. He has also designed a very effective IR light system, which he turned into his own successful business, GHOST GADGETS, NY where he produces custom orders for your IR Lighting Needs.

Kenny joined SCP in 2010. He brings to the SCP Family dedication to finding answers behind paranormal activity. He assists with the care and placement of the team equipment during investigations. During family trips outside of the US, he will not hesitate to investigate areas abroad, which is just a testimony to his dedication.

Joe is a new comer to the Paranormal Investigating . He comes to the team with a new view into investigating.

MUSICIAN OF THE MONTH SANTINO NOIR

How did you begin your journey in to music?

My interest in being a musician came on pretty early when I bought an electric guitar around the age of 10, but it never really grabbed me so I kind of fell out of the idea for a few years. Then around 13 I bought a cheap karaoke mic at a Radio Shack and began singing along to my favorite songs at the time, and I just fell in love with singing and the prospect of being a front man. From there I started my own band, and I've been involved in numerous bands, solo projects, and writing and production projects ever since.

Where are you from?

I was born in North Jersey, but we moved around a lot. Largely back and forth between New Jersey and South Florida. Finally planted some roots in Toms River where I attended Toms River High School East for all 4 years. After that I was back in FL, then back to NJ, then NYC for a few years, and I live in Hollywood, CA now. So I guess I'm a bit of a mutt, but New York City and the Jersey Shore were always constants for me no matter where we lived, so I consider them both a home of sorts.

Who have you worked with?

I've been fortunate enough and proud to have worked with numerous talented artists in music and film on stage, on set, and in the studio. In music I've performed with Motley Crue, Papa Roach, Buckcherry, Machine Gun Kelly, Redman, and tons of other amazing acts. In the studio I've written and produced for Melissa Gorga (Real Housewives of NJ) and Deena Cortese (Jersey Shore). In Television and in my first acting gig I've worked with our close family friend Jenni "JWoww" Farley (Jersey Shore). And most recently I directed my first feature film "Bully", which was written by my father Joe Campanelli, with the very talented cast including some very seasoned and wonderful characters in Danny Trejo, Vincent Pastore, Ron Canada, and the youngest on set who held down the entire film like the pro that he is, Tucker Albrizzi. Behind the scenes though, none of these accomplishments would have been possible without awesome and talented bandmates, crew, and staff involved in many of the facets of each project.

What inspires you?

Life. Everything. The high of completing a project you're proud of, that you poured everything in to. I often draw inspiration from other artists too. Pulling from Film, TV, music, artwork, design, architecture, etc. I love it all.

What are my other endeavors?

Well, beyond the obvious of singing and performing music as a solo artist. I'm currently in two other bands, Crash the Night (think Maroon 5 meets Linkin Park) and Rogue Star (dirty vintage rock with some modern elements). I've also dabbled in promotion, club management, production, and marketing. In film... I love directing, from a few music videos

Charcoal on Wood Panel Drawings

I am currently working on a new series of drawings that are portraits of people I know in Cincinnati. Each person holds an arrow and an object. The object represents something they love. I tell the participants that the object “doesn’t have to represent what they love the most, just something they love.” The arrows represent cupid’s arsenal.

The idea for this body of work was born from a lecture I attended a few years ago. The speaker told the crowd that “It’s easy to make artwork about pain and struggles, injustices and raw deals. It’s much harder to make something about positivity.” This quote has stayed with me ever since and rings out in my head while making every drawing.

I wanted to make a series that represented love, but also represent the city of Cincinnati in an attempt to promote the value of community. I asked for volunteer models on social media and got an overwhelming response. The process is quite simple. I go to thrift stores and rummage shops to find ornate frames to buy and from those I cut wood panels to fit them. I stain the wood and make the work with charcoal, chalk and eraser. The style is inspired by Italian Renaissance painter’s cartoons and underpaintings. I wanted a stripped down look for this series in hopes that it would create a more honest sense of emotional than my previous paintings could.

At this point, not counting drawings I’ve done in this style for fundraisers or for experimenting, I have 8 finished/ framed pieces in this series called Love Letters. My goal is to have 12 finished/ framed pieces in this series which I’m currently doing sketches and photography for. In between the Love Letter drawings I do “one-off” drawings to work on my craft and to practice new techniques. Some of these pieces wind up being my favorites even if they’re never shown or even finished.

Catrina's International Catering with Chef Sal

1 box of Lobster Ravioli
1 Quart container of Heavy Cream
8 oz. of Grated pecorino Romano cheese
quarter stick of Butter
1/2 bunch fresh basil

In a medium saucepan take 3 thirds of a quart of heavy cream and pour it in

Leave on medium heat and let it cook for 5 minutes stirring occasionally.

While that's cooking take the basil and make sure it's washed and patted dry and chop it fine.

Next take the basil and put it in with the heavy cream and lower the flame and stir .

After you have done that take a quarter stick of butter and 4 oz of the grated cheese and add to your sauce and stir.

(A wooden spoon is recommended for this to stir with)

Add a pinch of salt and pepper to taste.

Now while your basil cream sauce is cooking on a low flame in another pot put up the water to boil the raviolis. Add a pinch of salt to water and let boil.

When the water is boiling add the raviolis and give one nice careful stir to the raviolis to make sure they don't stick. It should take about 5 to 7 minutes for the ravioli to be done.

All the while your doing this you need to keep stirring your basil cream sauce. Your sauce should be ready in about 15 minutes.

Salt and pepper to taste

When the sauce is done, remove from heat and add the other 4 oz of grated Romano cheese and stir.

Drain water out of Ravioli

After you have drained all the water from the ravioli place them on either one big plate or 2 plates and then take a ladle or large spoon and pour your cream sauce over the ravioli to your liking!!

ENJOY AND HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!

Valentine's Day is in the air, so join us with Chef Sal as he makes a savory Lobster Ravioli dish for Two!!!

Heart Shaped Lobster Ravioli for 2!
