Fierce and Fabulous Spring Colors!

Story by Tarajeane McDonald

The wild winds and fierce rains of April have prepared the earth for nature's Spring blooms of color. Bursting colors of red, yellow, green and purple have begun to scatter the fields and gardens.

Color is light and light is energy. Certain colors can stimulate and excite us, while others can calm us. Learn how the wheels of colors change alter your moods and affect your image in fashion.

RED is the color of blood and fire. Red can actually increase our pulse rate, it is associated with strength, power, war, danger, desire and passion. ORANGE gives a feeling of happiness and excitement. It is associated with the tropics and sunshine. Wearing orange can encourage enthusiasm, creativity and fascination.

YELLOW is the color of sunshine. Bright pure yellow is an attention grabber and is a symbol of joy. But it has been said babies cry more in yellow rooms.

BLUE is the color of the sea and the sky. It has been known to symbolize trust, loyalty and heaven.

PURPLE is associated with royalty. It is considered a color representing luxury, ambition, extravagance and wealth. There can also be a sense of mystery and magic connected to this color.

GREEN is the color of nature. This color brings a sense of harmony and freshness. Green also has great healing power; it is considered the most restful color for the human eye. Green can promote a feeling of growth and hope, which is why it was chosen for money.

Spring is a time of rebirth. Cover yourselves in the vibrant and fierce colors of Spring and join the movement of Courage, Passion and Power in 2017.

IRVING PENN Centennial

at the met fifth avenue
April 24-July 30th 2017

The most comprehensive retrospective to date of the work of the great American photographer Irving Penn (1917–2009), this exhibition marks the centennial of the artist's birth. Over the course of his nearly 70-year career, Penn mastered a pared-down aesthetic of studio photography that is distinguished for its meticulous attention to composition, nuance, and detail. The exhibition follows the 2015 announcement of the landmark promised gift from The Irving Penn Foundation to The Met of more than 150 photographs by Penn, representing every period of the artist's dynamic career with the camera. The gift forms the core of the exhibition, which features more than 200 photographs by Penn, including iconic fashion studies of Lisa Fonssagrives-Penn, the artist's wife; exquisite still lifes; Quechua children in Cuzco, Peru; portraits of urban laborers; female nudes; tribesmen in New Guinea; and color flower studies. The artist's beloved portraits of cultural figures from Truman Capote, Picasso, and Colette to Ingmar Bergman and Issey Miyake are also featured. Rounding out the exhibition are photographs by Penn that entered The Met collection prior to the promised gift. #IrvingPenn <http://www.metmuseum.org/>

Evil Queen and The White Princess

Good and Evil never looked so Sweet, our Evil Queen Sabrina along with Princess Samantha takes you on a mystikal tour of The Our House Restaurant & The new Lucy's Pub . Dating back before the Revolution to 1747., Our House was built by George Marriner and operated for many years as "Marriner's Tavern." Throughout later years it was then established as "Our House Tavern." Now, it has become the restored, renovated (and some believe....haunted....check your history books), newly owned and operated "Our House Restaurant & Banquet Facility."

Over the years, our restaurant has been a gathering place for township meetings, dances, weddings, and many other events. Back in the olden days, it was also a gathering place for a band of outlaws known as the "Fagen Gang." One of the members of the gang, Lewis Fenton was hung on September 23, 1779 in front of the restaurant by members of the Major Lee's Light Dragoons. They were stationed at the County Seat of the Monmouth County Court House, now known as Freehold. We were also visited by the great President George Washington.

Owner, Rob Mowla and his staff here at Our House, welcome you to join the long list of the great, near great and the not so great who have dined and drank here for the past two and a half centuries!

Putting a "Twist" on Media

WITH TWISTED MEDIA NYC

Founder: John Harrison

Interview by Sandy Foley

Written by Aki Solomos

In the city that never sleeps, with over 8 million stories to tell, there's a company that enjoys the strange and out of ordinary things in life. "We saw where reality TV was going, and we like twisting things around. We like to put a twist on certain storylines -hence our company name, Twisted Media NYC."

Sandy Foley of Fashion Haunts magazine had the opportunity to sit down with Twisted Media NYC founder and President, John Harrison in a one-on-one interview at one of New York's renown Irish American pubs, John Sullivan's on 35th street.

Sandy: First of all, thank you for having us over. So tell us, how did Twisted Media NYC get its start? Where did it all begin?

John: Twisted Media NYC started through our sports and media connections. We became involved with world famous sports teams. We put together a strategic plan for our client's web based content to be broadcast in Asia.

Both myself and business partner James Dalton were looking at current media and programming platforms to add our own 'twist' to a project under development. We are always looking at ways of twisting an idea and concept.

Sandy: What sports and media connections do you have? And how did you get into film?

John: We worked with many famous professionals in sports, movies, music, and entertainment industries for over 10 years. We respectfully withhold their names -but they know who we are.

One day we were approached by an agent asking for help in seeking funding for multiple movie projects. Through my vast list of business connections, I was able to connect various movie projects ranging from Christian faith based movies to biopics with financial institutions.

Sandy: Tell us about some of the projects you're currently working on.

John: We recently created a new reality show called UnReal Estate. There are paranormal shows and real estate shows out there. We merged and twisted them calling it UnReal Estate which brings the quirky side of New York City apartments. People are looking for certain kind of apartments, so when our clients sense a presence in their property, we'll bring in your paranormal ghost hunting team to give the place a once over.

Sandy: What kind of requests do some people have?

John: Well, it's the dark, dark side of New York City. There's people out there that would like to have a casket in their apartment and actually sleep in them! They think they're vampires. They dress like vampires. And they don't come out during the day. Some even hang upside down in their closet. It's all part of the strange and quirky side of New York. So we crossover the Real Estate side of things, most people know it as it as squeaky clean, to the paranormal side which is a side I tend to steer away from. But after speaking with you, I've been enlightened that it's not that scary after all.

Sandy: Our team likes to go head-on with the paranormal.

John: I feel comfortable enough now to achieve our goals and work together to bring real case studies to the TV about people who actually believe they are a vampire, lykon, or whatever, and truly think their property is possessed.

Sandy: Besides UnReal Estate, are there other projects you're currently working on?

John: We have a new project called Rock Chefs. We invite famous classic Rockers who are trying to re-brand themselves and enjoy cooking, to cook on our show and talk about their experiences from their tours, the foods they eaten, and recreate that environment with a famous chef.

Sandy: At Fashion Haunts, we love classic rock. That would be awesome to watch! Are there any movie projects you have going on?

John: We're involved with Bungalow 42 Productions out of Los Angeles that is doing a movie about Marilyn Monroe. It's called Goodnight Marilyn. It's about the ongoing investigation of her death, what really happened, and her final hours of her life. We believe in this project, and we're putting together investors to help complete this project. I know that no matter what they discover, her legend will live on.

Sandy: You seem to have a lot of projects going on. Where can people find you and get more information?

John: We can be found on www.twistedmedianyc.com There you can see all the projects we have, their graphics, and information about our team. We can also be found on Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter under the same name.

On behalf of Fashion Haunts Magazine, we would to thank you for this opportunity in giving our readers insight about the quirky, the strange, and the dark side of real life stories.

Allen Titus

Canadian Male model/actor

Raised in Saint John, N.B. Allen Titus had lost both his parents by the age of 16. He was able to tough it out and started his first career, with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at 20 years of age. Following numerous job transfers throughout Canada, his final transfer taking him to Moncton, N.B., with his final posting being with the Codiac RCMP.

This is where he started his modelling career, even getting the nicknames, Runway or Hollywood, from his fellow police officers. He modeled with the Ruth Barnes Modelling Agency and did numerous runway shows in Canada, as well as commercial photo shoots. Following acting lessons, he got the role of a police officer in a television pilot.

Allen was scouted by Lainy Gold, and has since been featured in various fashion magazines in NY. One of them being Fashion Haunts that he loves, and has been featured in a second time. He has since been booked for a video shoot this spring in the USA. www.LainyGold.com

KINNELON CASTLE -A Haunted Fashion Rendevous by Aki Solomos

Nestled in north New Jersey, where the I-287 and Route 23 meet, is a borough called Kinnelon. And within those 19 square miles, many manors and mansions were built in the early 1900's. Among them, on a 9-acre property, New York stockbroker Milton Untermyer built his stone mansion in 1920. Mirroring the French provincial castles, Milton imported European cut stones, tiles, and marble. To accentuate the property, he surrounded his new home with various exotic plants and trees.

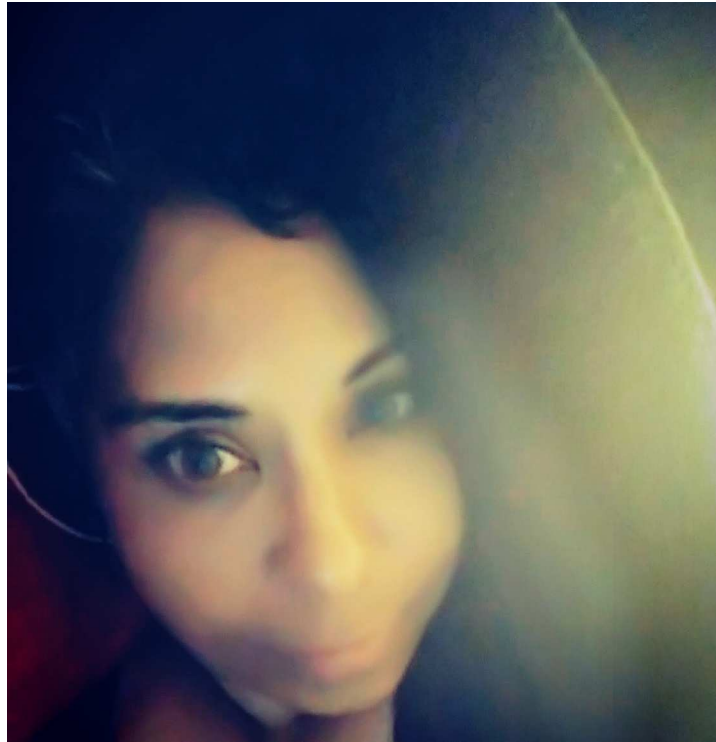

One can imagine the glamour and opulence of the roaring 20's -when the wealthy such as the Astors, Vanderbilts, Getty, and Carnegie lived like royalty. Their homes were palaces. Quick excursions to their summer cottages/mansions, and house parties were a common thing to do if you were successful. Jazz bands played their instruments; women showed off their moves in their fringed dresses and pearls; and men enjoyed their drinks and stogies in their sharp suits and top hats. 'The Great Gatsby' days.

Nearly five decades later, 1968 to be exact, Kinnelon Castle, or the Untermyer Mansion, burned down to the ground. Not much of it was left except the remnants of its imposing stone walls and steps, and a couple of fireplaces with their chimneys. According to its new owner, Jeffrey Konarski, a lightning strike was the cause of the fire. His family bought the property in 1998, and hidden from sight, high atop a hill, camouflaged by ivy, thick brush, and trees, the forgotten castle was rediscovered.

"There's some rich history here. In the 1920's, someone was murdered at a dinner party. And the History Channel filmed here about the war. The place used to be amazing during its heyday. It was like a cathedral!" During the lost years, rumors and tales spread throughout the neighborhood of wandering ghosts, of students being chased by a shotgun wielding figure, and even an old lady living among the ruins. Each story differed, adding flair and mystery to Kinnelon Castle.

Please Lower Your Weapon

Poetic_lyrics50 (instagram)

Please if you would just lower your weapon you'd quickly see that the only difference between you and me is the color of our skin but we're both men.

Please if you would just lower your weapon you'd realize I'm only going another block or two.

Please if you would just lower your weapon you'd learn I've just worked one hell of a day couldn't seem to stay outta the bosses way but hey what can you say.

Please if you would just lower your weapon by the way I could tell you it's my sons 1st birthday.

Please if you would just lower your weapon we both live another day.

Anyone can be on the other end of the weapon but someone has to choose to just please lower your weapon.

A Model Citizen

Nana is one of the most entertaining cast members in the history of Always Late TV's Local Ambition web series, but she has overcome a lot to get there.

From an early age, Nana knew that she had to be strong in order to survive. Not knowing who her father was, Nana lived with her mother in an abusive household until she was 13. At that point, her mother kicked her out and she spent several years living on the streets of St. Louis. While she was homeless, she would look at the tall skyscrapers and city lights and dream of a better future. Nana says that the time she spent on the streets made St. Louis "part of her soul."

Eventually, her mother would find her and sent her to a juvenile rehabilitation center for troubled teens. Having never committed a crime, Nana had to adjust to living with teenagers who had been in trouble with the law. Scheduled meal times, curfews, and counseling sessions became a regular part of Nana's life.

When her time at the rehabilitation center was over, Nana was picked up by the relative of a friend she met at the center. "I took the wrong ride," she said, recalling the events that took place after she was picked up. What was a simple ride home turned into a kidnapping. She did everything she could to escape another abusive environment and found safety in the streets of St. Louis once again. Nana said, "I never got the love I deserved growing up." As an adult, Nana was finally introduced to her father - whom she had not seen her entire life. "He lived in a house right around the area I slept in when I was homeless," she said. She is also living with her boyfriend, Loafer, in a home in the Forest Park area of St. Louis.

Throughout her life, Nana was always misunderstood and wanted to find an outlet for her creativity. This year, she found an ad online for the casting call for Local Ambition's sixth season. She showed up and the producers fell in love with her and were touched by her story.

Always Late TV's web series, Local Ambition, features 11 women who go head-to-head in a series of themed photo shoots and modeling challenges. Unlike other shows of the genre, Local Ambition, casts women of different shapes, sizes, ages, and backgrounds defying mainstream modeling's vision of what a model should be. The focus of the show is not on outward appearances, but rather characters, personalities, and stories. Each of the eleven cast members in the current season have a story to tell. Viewers will find out who they are and how they got there. They will also discover how the cast reacts when they have to be competitive toward one another.

The sixth season of Local Ambition airs worldwide Monday, September 18 @ www.alwayslatetv.com.

The growing popularity of Robert the Doll has captured the eyes of FHM for some months now. So let us tell you the story of this mysterious 3 ft. cute as a bug, Robert the Doll. Once owned by a painter named Robert Eugene Otto, supposedly, Otto was given the doll in 1906 by a Bahamian servant who practiced black magic and voodoo. Rumor has it the doll was cursed by this servant as a way to get back at the family. Otto's parents often heard him talking to the doll. At first they assumed that Otto was simply answering himself in a changed voice but later claimed to believe the doll was actually speaking.

Neighbors claimed to have seen the doll moving from window to window when the family was out. Otto died in 1974 leaving behind this strange stuffed terror at the mercy of whomever claims him next.

Robert the 3 ft. doll can now be found encased in glass at Key West Martello Museum. But don't get too close or he may just want to come home with you!!

Lakehurst Prom, Fashion and Beauty Expo 2017

Prom time is once again upon us and as we scurry with our anxious children from store to store, picking out that dynamic dress or dapper tux, we cant help but ponder how fast our babies grow up! April 7th 2017 owner Rose Kaiser of Dimensional Designs Salon and Spa and owner Heather Kramer of Colonial Bouquet Florist, hosted a amazing event at The La Bove Grande in LakeHurst NJ. Beautiful Models graced the runway with hair and makeup done by the talented staff of Dimensional Designs, working hard to make the models look glamorous on the runway without a hair out of place. Starting the show was the soft and cozy designs of LuLa Roe with fashion consultant Kristin Titus. Casual but elegant Lula Roe is great for those hot summer days for comfort and style. Adorable cocktails dresses and summer maxi's in lace and cotton were supplied by D. Monaco Designs Boutique from Point Pleasant Beach, a unique boutique from the Jersey Shore! For the men, Chazmatazz of Toms River presented suits and tuxedo's looking fresh and clean on our handsome male models along with debonaire bowties. Monica Karinne Couture was also in the house with her elegant dresses made with crushed velvet and beautiful flowing tulle a prom favorite! Lets not forget the flowers!! Colonial Bouquet Florist of Lakehurst NJ, added that special touch on each model with hand made corsages, headbands, boutonniere's and new on the runway floral ringlets. Bringing in the end with a glamorous finale was elegant gowns and dresses by New York City Glitz from Pine Beach, NJ, a must see boutique for prom and all special occasions. Fashion Haunts Magazine wants to thank Rose Kaiser and Heather Kramer for a exciting and entertaining night! Get your prom on and make grand memories and don't forget visit these great stores below for all your prom needs:

Artist of the Month

Debra Bernier was born a middle child, with an older sister and younger brother. She was known as the 'ham in the sandwich', although she would live a vegetarian lifestyle. Growing up in a home without TV, Debra was free to wander and explore her world, encouraged by her Mother to befriend squirrels, bring home salamanders, unearth bones, and cherish bird's nests. One of Debra's earliest memories is digging at the beach, discovering the rich, dark clay layered under the sand. Buckets of clay were hauled home and soon the family's spider-webbed shed was converted into Debra's childhood studio. Clay figures of animals and mermaids would be sculpted, only to dry out and crumble. Never one to be discouraged, Debra soon found new mediums to work with and would later complete a B.Ed at Ottawa University, Canada.

Today Debra still collects shells and stones, and with her husband, encourages her two beautiful, messy children to explore nature's diversity.

Living on Vancouver Island means Debra has an endless supply of driftwood to work with; her favorite medium. Like the bones of past trees, each piece of driftwood holds a story and the spirit of nature. Debra hopes that her art inspires creativity and awakens a connection to the beauty of nature.

Roasted Hot Sausage over Sautéed Broccoli Rabe with Roasted Potatoes

2-3 bunches of broccoli rabe
5 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1 Clove of garlic
2 lbs. packages of Hot Sausage links
Crushed red peppers
3 lbs. of red potatoes
Salt pepper to taste
Rosemary
Oregano

Pre-heat oven to 350

Lay sausage in baking pan, coat pan with oil

Put sausages in oven for 30 minutes turn once to cook evenly

Prepare broccoli to boil, by cutting off a inch of the ends

In a large pot, boil broccoli with a touch of salt in water

Boil for 5 minutes

Cool down broccoli by putting on ice, then take out of water to squeeze out excess water. Put to side

Clean potatoes and cut in quarters, lay potatoes on oil covered baking pan

Cover potatoes with salt, pepper and sprinkle chopped garlic, rosemary and oregano on top

Place in oven and bake 30 to 40 minutes

Take sautee pan let it get hot then add oil, add 2 Tbls. of chopped garlic, cook. As garlic is browning add a Tsp. of crushed red pepper. Add Broccoli rabe and saute

Add salt and pepper to broccoli to taste

Cook until tender, not too soft

When ready place the broccoli rabe on large plate then layer sausage criss-cross on top of broccoli rabe

Take roasted red peppers and use for decoration on plate

Add small roasted potatoes and place on the four corners of plate or serve on separate plate

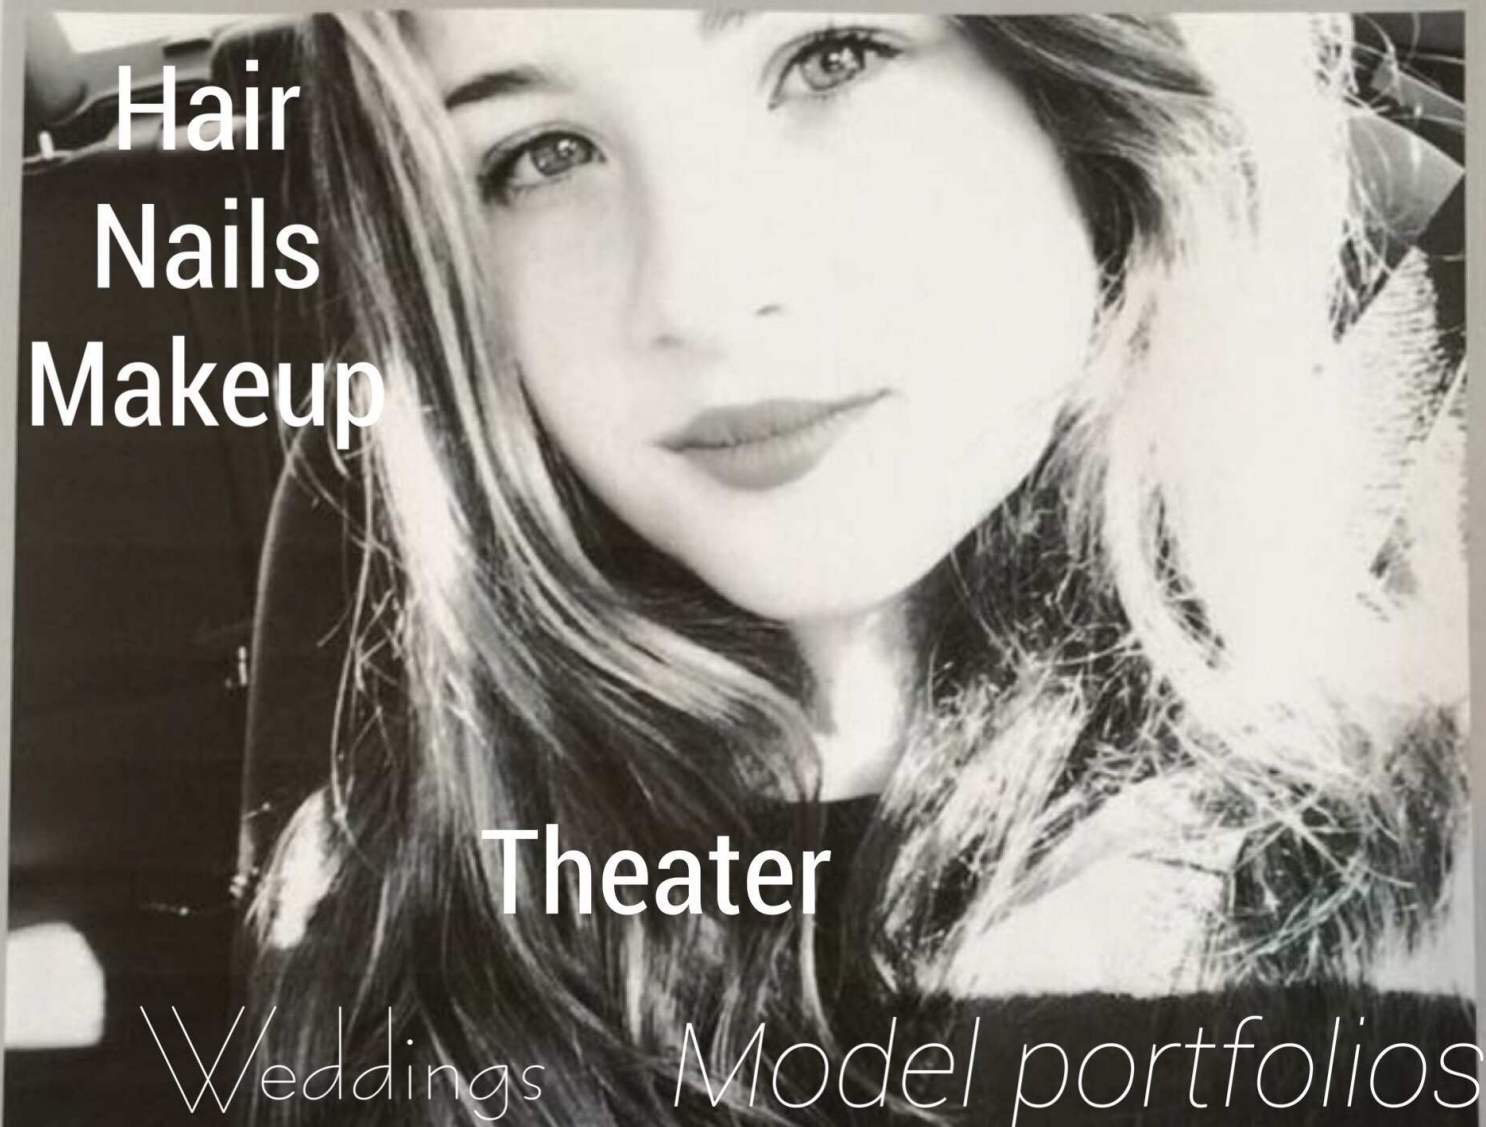

Place on table and Enjoy!

Serves family of four.
